TOBACCO DUST FOR INSECTS.

Directions for its Use in Clearing Plants of Destructive Pests.

From the Practical Farmer.
A reader asked me whether tobacco dust should be applied to vines when they are wet with dew or when they are dry. This moves me to say that the tobacco dust, or the home meal, or the mixture of both, is not intended as a coating for the leaves, which would make them poisonous or unpalatable, but as a covering for the soil, that will make the atmosphere very uncomfortable for all insects and worms. I like to have the material remain dry and dusty as long as possible. In that case it has a more thorough effect on bugs and beetles that have hard shells. The wet tobacco, or tobacco tea, or even the fumes of wet tobacco, are very wholesome to the soft-bodied insects, worms, &c. I find that cucumber beetles do not like to work in dust, and that all of tobacco dust. When I put this latter in deep around cucumber plants, the yellow-striped beetle promptly takes its departure and will stay away as long as the tobacco remains
